would be folly to go on with it, we don't know it is a correct one. Since it was printed I dare say it has never been compared with the original one, The House adjourned at 11:45 A.

M. until I P. M.

On re-assembling after recess, Minister Kapena presented the original copy of the Appropriation Bill which was read by the secretary for the first time.

Mr. Widemann rose to a question of order. He wanted to know whether this is first reading of the bill.

The President said yes.

Mr. Wideman-There is a resolution passed on Saturday on a bill not before the House, is it valid. I ask for a ruling.

The President said the action of the House was in perfect order.

Mr. Kalua moved the bill be read a second time by its title.

The President said, according to the rules of the House the bill must go to the Revising Committee, unless the rules be suspended.

THE CITY OF PARIS.

We are authorized to state that the inquiry concerning the large number of deaths on the late voyage of the City of Paris, has not yet been concluded; and that the Portuguese Commissioner is not satisfied with the result of the inquiry.

On the contrary he considers the conduct of the authorities at Madeira, and of the commander of the steamer as extremly reprehensible, owing to the fact that there was an epidemic of measles in Madeira at the time the emmigrants embarked, and adequate means of protection from infection were not taken.

THE CONCERT

On Saturday evening at the Music Hall, by Mr. Henry Heyman, the violinist, drew out a large and fashionable audience, and from a musical point of view was a great success. The first number on the programme was a piano duett, "Egmont Overture," excellently played by Misses Castle and Hopper. Mr. Charles Hasselmann, who is already All bills against me will be PAID an established favorite here, sang non e ver by Mattie with such a warmth of feeling and artistic finish that he was obliged to respond to an encore, and sung Dormi pure by Scuderi. The next number introduced Mr. Heyman to us, who played a cluster of classical gems. We were very much pleased with his playing, in delicacy as well as purity of tone he was especially good. He played with a great deal of feeling, and was in sympathy with his audience until the last note had died away. Mr. Heyman appeared later in the evening on two other occasions, and fully carried out our opinion of his abilities. Miss R. Lachman sang two selections during the evening which evidently gave satisfaction. We do not think the hall is adapted for this lady's voice, and for that reason would like to hear her in a smaller place, before making and remarks. This notice cannot be concluded without speaking in the highest terms of praise of the accompanist of the evening, Miss Castle who had a lion's share of work and
